To whom it may concern,

I am delighted to write this character reference for Daniel Ward, who is an accomplished young individual, and a fantastic student in our school community here at the Birley Academy. I have had the pleasure of teaching him French over the past five years and he has continued to impress me with his work ethic, attitude and maturity.

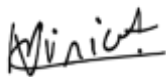

Over the past five years he has become an incredibly independent student who is organised and proactive. He has consistently set an example for his peers both in and out of the classroom. Daniel has always had very good attendance throughout his time at The Birley Academy and his behaviour record is absolutely impeccable. He is always presentable, polite and punctual.

Daniel is a very keen and curious learner and loves a variety of subjects. He embraces challenge and thrives on performing to his best ability in all areas of his life. I have seen his commitment to learning develop over the years and I know that he is keen to realise his potential and go on to achieve many great things.

Last year I had the pleasure to go and visit Daniel during his work experience placement at If Collective, a web and branding company in Sheffield. Whilst his time there was brief, Daniel seemed to fit it well and even created websites on his own. He was extremely professional and seemed ready for the world of work.

It is such a pleasure to be writing this character reference for Daniel. I truly hope he achieves all that he deserves and moves onto the next stage in life, doing something that will challenge, fulfil and captivate him.

Best wishes,
